Integrate RetailMax with Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) System or Accounting System

Your ERP/Accounting system holds much of the important data for your retail business. It's where you create products, ship orders, track inventory, and manage finances. That same information though needs to be shared across other systems in your business. Order shipping/tracking must post back to your eCommerce platform for online orders. Inventory counts from your ERP need to update on all your online storefronts. Product information must be listed on your website.

ERP integration then allows merchants to sync data and automate business processes between your ERP/Accounting and other critical business systems. For example, when someone buys an item online, your inventory levels should decimate in your ERP and then any other channel where you sell that same product. Without integration of your ERP system, most of the data in your ERP is transferred between your systems by manually hand-keying it, which is an inefficient process.
